IS JAPAN “BACK”?: AN ASSESSMENT OF ABENOMICS

with Matthew P. Goodman,
CSIS, William E. Simon Chair in Political Economy

Monday, June 10, 2013
12:00 – 1:00 P.M.

Japan-America Society of Washington DC
1819 L Street, NW, 1B Level
Washington, DC 20036

Matthew P. Goodman will update JASW members and friends on Japan’s role in today’s changing Asian economy. As Japan moves to implement "Abenomics" and joins the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), outsiders are asking whether Japan is really “back” and ready to assume its traditional central role in regional and global affairs. Mr. Goodman will assess Japan’s economic reform efforts and its future position in the region.

Matthew P. Goodman holds the William E. Simon Chair in Political Economy at CSIS. Previously, he was White House coordinator for Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) and the East Asia Summit (EAS). He also served as director for international economics on the National Security Council staff and was responsible for the G-20, G-8, and other international forums. He worked as an international economist at the US Treasury Department, including five years at the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo as the financial attaché. His private-sector experience includes work for Albright Stonebridge Group as the managing director in charge of Asia and Goldman, Sachs & Co. He holds an MA in international relations from Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies and a BS in economics from the London School of Economics.

The program is free, but seating is limited.
