Join us to learn how to make ehoumaki, a traditional sushi roll that is eaten during the Setsubun holiday, which is known as the end of winter. According to the custom, if you eat ehoumaki silently and without taking a break while looking towards the lucky direction of the year, you will get good luck and your wish will be granted. The lucky direction for 2017 is northern end of the northwest quadrant.

You will receive a soy sauce and a stir-fry & marinade sauce as a gift at the end of the class!

This class is generously sponsored by San-J. (www.san-j.com) San-J is renowned for its premium tamari and shoyu soy sauce and Japanese salad dressings, rice crackers, and Asian cooking sauces.
